

Seattle Targets with the most police responses

Target announced the closure of its Ballard and University District locations on Tuesday, citing crime and safety concerns. But police records show areas around other Target stores in the city have seen more police responses this year.

Note: Tallies of police incidents near Target stores include responses to the block or intersection where each store's main entrance is located. They only capture incidents after which a police report was filed. Not all incidents involved the stores.

Source: Seattle Police Department, Esri

AILEEN CLARKE / THE SEATTLE TIMES