

Historic redlining in Seattle

In the 1930s, the Home Owners' Loan Corp. graded neighborhoods on an A-to-D scale: "A" indicated lowest financial risk to lenders and "D" indicated highest risk to lenders. In a recent study, "X" indicated ungraded regions, primarily industrial areas that today have a population.

Source: University of Washington,
Mapping Inequality, Esri

AILEEN CLARKE / THE SEATTLE TIMES